

In 1650s France, the Chevalier de Méré had a gambling dilemma:

Game 1: Throw a fair die at most four times, and win if you get a six.

Game 2: Throw two fair dice at most twenty-four times, and win if you get a double-six.

Which of the two games offers the best chance of winning?